A Sunny Summer Sunday on the Irish Grounds

A blazing charcoal grill, baited fishing poles, hot pop corn, cold ice cones, pony rides, kiddies swimming pools, a magician, volleyball nets, horseshoes, a shady pavilion, families, good friends and Irish music . What more could you ask for? God blessed us.

The Irish Picnic of Yore

By Peggy Calvey Patton

When I was a little girl, the Irish picnic was held on the Incarnate Word Shrine grounds on Pearl Road. The bus would pick up the Irish of St. Ignatius Parish in the parking lot of Sears & Roebuck on Lorain Avenue & W 110 Street and take us out to the country now known as Parma Heights.

The picnic would start with outdoor Mass usually said by a visiting Irish Missionary Priest. The Latin Masses had a lot of kneeling and we knelt on the grass, which was hard, but the bugs were worse. We really prayed at that Mass; for it to end soon. We were anxious to run and play and didn't want to hear about the starving kids in Brazil.

A circle of folding chairs would be formed and a trio of men called the "Irish Ensemble" would play reels, jigs and old Irish songs. Different people would be called upon to sing and when it was a beautiful sad song about "home", the parents would be quiet and sometimes weepy. Later on, a bagpiper would walk around playing Scottish marching songs and every last kid there would follow and march behind him. We loved showing off in our little parade.

Food was not served, but a bar would serve beer and warm pop, and sometimes popsicles would be given out.

We stayed until dark and then got back on the buses and went home to the city with a new appreciation of our birthright; a combination of laughter, Irish music, religious faith and a sense of unity.

Construction Update: This is an interior picture of the nearly completed Men's restroom on the Pavilion. It is on the south side and the Woman's restroom will be on the north side, both behind the stage.

The WSIA Board of Trustees, Tim Sheehan, Brendan Mulloy and Thomas Mulloy wish to extend their thanks and appreciation to all this year's Volunteers who made the 4th Annual WSIA, STEPHEN L. MULLOY SR., REVERSE RAFFLE another huge success, raising just over $4500 for the club.

A special thank you to McDonough's Brigade & P.T. O'Malley Catering for their continued coordination of utilizing the kitchen facilities simultaneously again this year.

Once again Thank You to all of you, as we all know these events can not happen without your continued generosity.

"The Stones & other stories" by Daniel Corkery
Book Review

This is a book of short stories previously published in other works of the author. Mr. Corkery was born and died in County Cork, 1878 to 1964. The stories are of an older Ireland, using Irish idioms, phrases, prayers and place names suggesting a different culture. His aging characters are forced to realize things have changed around them, old customs are gone, traditions have changed.

In his story "The Stones" the old men of Kilclaw are distraught over a lonely gentleman, John Redney and his friend, Jack Lambert. Redney claims to have seen the effigy of some of the townsmen in the stones that for centuries have covered the land.

"The Cry" is a story of an American visiting Ireland, of witnessing the strong belief the natives held regarding an outcrop of stones forming a wall along a lonely road. Jack Creedon explains to the visitor that he is at the Croppy's grave and he must fling a stone at the wall and say "May Eternal Light shine upon him".

"The Spanceled, Colonel MacGillicuddy Goes Home, The Spancelled, The Awakening" are just some of the short stories included in the book. You can read a story, lay it down and go back to it later for another story.

LEARN TO PLAY "25"!!!!

Perhaps you've seen our articles about our semi-annual card drives and would like to learn to play. Well after dinner stick around and learn to play the game from some real experts. On Friday nights there's always a game going on (start time approximately 8 p.m.) and the seasoned players would love to pass along this tradition to any interested member.
